I thought my wife's job as a teacher was easy. I pictured her day as all fun and games. She challenged me to take a day shadowing her in her classroom as a teacher. Challenge taken! Before it was time for snack I was already emotionally exhausted. By lunch I was ready to call it quits. I hung in there and survived a day as a teacher. Don't get me wrong, being a teacher for a day had many rewarding moments. So many hugs, smiles and I think I actually made a positive difference in some children's lives. But it was physically and emotionally exhausting! I have a new found respect for my wife and EVERY teacher on this planet! I'm an executive for a major corporation. After seeing what a teacher does on a daily basis, I actually suggested that my wife run for president!
